It's hard to believe she's really gone. It crosses my mind every so often about wanting to call and let her know something. Then the reality of never being able to call her hits. I'll never be able to stop and have coffee every morning with her before work or get a phone call from her saying "I've got ham and cheese for a sandwich so come on over for lunch." We'll never be able to go out for lunch which she loved doing. But in the end there are all those happy memories that we all have of her.##imported-begin##Linda Gelinis##imported-end##

The Dash Poem
by Linda Ellis

I read of a man who stood to speak
At the funeral of a friend
He referred to the dates on her tombstone
From the beginning to the end

He noted that first came the date of her birth
And spoke the following date with tears,
But he said what mattered most of all
Was the dash between those years

For that dash represents all the time
That she spent alive on earth.
And now only those who loved her
Know what that little line is worth.

For it matters not how much we own;
The cars, the house, the cash,
What matters is how we live and love
And how we spend our dash.
