“ Drew you were one of the absolute most upstanding men I've known. You helped me when I was down, and ran a cook line like no other! No one will ever be able to fill your shoes. My deepest condolences to your family. My heart breaks for them in this tragic time. God only takes his strongest angels..and when he takes someone so young, with so much life left to give here on earth, it just means he was running light up there.. and needed a real heavy hitter. Save me a seat bubba.

“ Drew, I never really thought that the day would come where I'd have to accept that I'd never see you again. I knew it was inevitable, but I never really thought that it would happen so soon and so suddenly. At times you were crazy, at times you were kind of cool, but you were always a great brother, and no words come to mind whenever I try to think of what to say to the fact you're gone. I don't want to accept it- I don't think I ever will, I think I'll spend the rest of my life waiting for those random late night phone calls to ask for a ride to work, or waiting to hear what wild stories Gina or mom without fail gained from their interactions with you.

You were the one that showed me the music genres I find myself listening to all the time. You were the one that showed me the greatness of video games. You were the brother I was proud to say I had whenever someone asked if I had siblings.

You will always be the brother I love with all my heart.

“ I have nothing but good memories of Drew. He was always kind and a great listener. He never did me wrong and at 36 years old with the life I lived, he was the only one left who hadn't. He reminded me a lot of his dad. Lou was always very kind and supportive as well. My absolute favorite thing was he always made me laugh. I don't know that I'll ever be the same now that he's gone. I miss him so bad. He was my best friend. My only comfort is to know his pain is gone. I'll see you on the other side Drew. I love you man. More than you could ever know.
